CHARLES

Charles Emery is the envy of the town of Hartland. He moved here about two years ago and has been doing well ever since. However, when he first arrived in Hartland he would not try to get acquainted with anyone in the neighborhood. This seemed strange, for he was very friendly and talkative on the farm. I mentioned earlier that he was the envy of the town, didn't I?

Charlie is a well-educated young fellow in his field. He now gets around and meets every fellow and gal in town (maybe a little too much so), and when he goes to see them, he sometimes doesn't return for two or three days. Maybe that's because he has to walk everywhere he goes. Charles has the most beautiful red hair you have ever seen! Funny—all the other Emerys have brown hair. Maybe we have a red-headed ancestor somewhere. Frankly, I'm worried about Charlie—he's lost a lot of weight since we moved to town. He isn't staying home much now, and he isn't eating very regularly. Goodness! I hope he isn't smoking on the sly, or something like that. In spite of losing weight, Charlie is built well enough so that it isn't too noticeable. For the last two or three years, he's had a terrible crop of red hair on his chin. I've tried to make him shave, but he just won't do it.

Last year, a very unfortunate incident occurred. Charlie was injured in a fight. Someone hit him in the right eye with something; he never would tell us who did it. Anyway, we rushed him to the doctor, and he had to have his eye removed. Since we couldn't afford a glass eye, the doctor just sewed his eyelid up and let it sink back in. Charlie doesn't seem to mind it too much; he just doesn't look in the mirror as much as he used to. Many people think he looks terrible, but it doesn't even show when he's asleep.

You're probably wondering where Charles works. Well, he doesn't work now. He used to work on the farm, but he just can't seem to get used to working in town. I don't think he likes to work indoors anyway. He never has said anything about it, but I can tell by the way he acts. You know how it is, anyway—bad eye and all. Really can't blame him.

Charles gets very annoyed at me, I think. He usually stays home to watch the fires; yet I never take him home anything. Can't blame him, for he hates to go to a store. People never wait on him.

Charlie gets very angry when I shut his tail in the refrigerator door. Oh, my goodness—tail reminds me! I bet I forgot to tell you that Charlie was my cat. You probably thought he was a dog or a billy goat, didn't you? You didn't think he was human, did you? You did? Oh—oh! Charlie will kill me when he finds out about this. He hates to be the subject of a conversation!

THE TOWERS OF NATURE

If you have ever walked through the forests, you have seen them. If you have strolled through the parks of your city, you have seen them. If you have ever rolled along the highway in the family car, you have seen them. By now you must have drawn some conclusion about what I'm writing. Yes, the poplar, the elm, the pine, the birch, the beech, the maple, the oak, the fir—these are the Towers of Nature.

Have you ever been for a walk through the forests near your home in the winter? If you have, you must have seen the majestic pine, with its green sprills protruding from the ivory white snow. This scene undoubtedly made a picture in your mind that no artist could reproduce. The pine and the many other members of its family are a good example of evergreen trees. The name gives you a vivid idea of what they are. The evergreen trees stay green all the year.

Then there is the mighty oak, identified by the rough bark which covers it and by the acorns that cluster its branches. The oak in the fall of the year is a beautiful sight to view, with its leaves turned to all the colors of the rainbow by the first early frosts. Then in mid-winter its monstrous limbs are bare and outstretched like the arms of a mighty blacksmith pleading for mercy. This is an amazing sight. The oak is a good example of the trees that do not stay green all the year long, losing their leaves in winter.

If anyone ever took the trouble or, I should say, the pleasure to list all the different names and descriptions of the trees, it would take a book of a thousand pages to condense the material.

The reason why I speak of them as the Towers of Nature is that they rise above everything else in the forests. They range from three feet to several hundred feet in height; however, whether they are three feet or three hundred feet high, they all have a certain beauty that captivates all men at one time or another.

The following essay was written to show the value of vocabulary study.

THE COMMUNIST PARTY— A SCOURGE TO THE WORLD

The people of the world are by nature a heterogeneous lot, because each person has his own personality. The chief aim of the Communist Party is to make the peoples of the world into a squalid aggregation of homogeneous slaves. They will place a few mercenary leaders in command of each country and let the rest of the populace starve. The world will then fall into a chaotic state, seething with internal strife. They will corrupt the people with their odious beliefs. They will place the intelligentsia at sedentary jobs, and the average people will be reduced to menial labor.

I cannot comprehend why a person of even average intelligence can be convinced to join this movement. These insidious men, with their myriads of tiny subtleties and subversive ways, are able to usurp a country to the extent that it becomes a mausoleum for political prisoners and an abattoir for the common people. If a few men achieve key positions, their voluminous speeches may add several thousand renegades to their numbers.

The atrocities that would be committed under a Communist regime are illustrated by those committed in the part of the world that is under Communist rule. There is no such thing as a fair court or a legal subpoena. When they want a person in court, the leaders usually send two secret policemen with machine guns after him. When one goes to court, there are vast amounts of superfluous evidence against him. He might just as well be in Siberia, a heinous place to which people are ostracized. People convicted by these purges are taken as far as the Ural mountains, where they begin the long, precipitous march to Siberia. This is not exactly salutary to their constitution. The prisoners are fed twice a day, usually cold meat and dark bread. The tenacious cold kills many before the destination is reached. The food in these concentration camps is far from succulent, for it is so full of garlic that it could be considered downright toxic. One becomes incredulous when he sees how senile some of the prisoners are; however, they still must gather their quota of wood every day.

We have received a patrimony of freedom from our ancestors. Should we lose this precious heritage by trying to placate Russia and then letting her conquer our great nation? If we permit this tawdry belief to enter our country, we can never redress the wrong. Leading sources prognosticate that if we do not assert ourselves some time soon, we shall be overrun by these scions of the devil.

THE FAMILY DOG

Some time in our life we all have had something that we cherished dearly. So did the Emerson family. Their cherished possession was Colonel, the collie dog.

They had this dog long before I went to live with them; in fact, they had had it since it was a puppy.

Betty, the only child of the Emersons, learned to walk by the help of Colonel. He would slowly walk across the floor and lead Betty along. In this way she learned to walk much more quickly than other children her age. Betty grew up loving this dog just as dearly as did her folks.

Colonel had not only been a good companion for Betty, but he had also saved her life. One summer afternoon Betty and Colonel were out in the cow pasture near the pond, and, as many children do, she went too near the edge and fell in. Colonel did not jump in, but he did help to save her. He ran across the pasture and straight to the Emerson home, barking constantly. The barking brought the family outside, and Colonel led them to the pond where Betty was struggling to keep herself afloat. Mr. Emerson rescued Betty and found her to be unharmed. After this heroic deed, the Emerson family called Colonel a hero.

As in all lives, there are happy moments and sad ones. To the Emerson family, the saddest one was when their hero passed away. Since Colonel was a member of the family, they gave him a funeral. He is not forgotten, and on each Memorial Day, Colonel receives a wreath in remembrance of his wonderful deeds and the joy he brought to the Emersons.

The following was the winning essay in a contest sponsored by a local merchant.

WHY LOCAL WAGE EARNERS SHOULD TRADE IN HARTLAND

A community's appearance tells travelers whether it is prosperous or not. If wage earners trade locally, merchants can keep their stores attractively painted, neat and clean, with decorative windows, showing that it is a prosperous town. Also, this trade is the storekeeper's sole way of securing a living for himself and his family.

The more trade the stores secure, the more they can expand in merchandise and lessen expenses. This will produce lower prices for customers.

When a new project is started, merchants are the ones who contribute generously of their money and merchandise, and stand by the project until completed. The merchants have helped finance such things as the new school building, hospital, and numerous organizations, with help from their patrons, all of which makes better future citizens.

Many worthy and needy families have been helped through cooperation from local merchants.

The Baxter Canning Plant and the Hartland Tannery wouldn't have been located in Hartland had they not been backed by local merchants. Now, these industries are the livelihood of many. When people patronize their local stores, prosperity moves in cycles, and everybody concerned benefits.

Storekeepers help pay a good part of a town's taxes, which support schools, roads, fire departments, lighting, and water systems.

FOREST DRAMA

I went to the forest the other day,
I watched frisky squirrels at their play.

Top to bottom, bottom to top,
Don't those squirrels ever stop?

I saw a white rabbit run through the fir green,
And hot on his trail a fox was seen.
After losing the fox, he struck a sly pose,
Rose up on his hind legs and wiggled his nose.

A white weasel ran up the brown
bark of a fir,
At the top sat a partridge; he will surely get her.
But at the last moment the bird realized her plight, Spread out her short wings and took off in swift flight.

The big event of the school year for us was the Freshman Reception. We have also had dancing classes this year, with Miss Nelson and Mr. Lenentine as our instructors.

The Freshman Class placed second in the magazine drive. Roger McFarland, one of the freshman students, was the leading salesman in the school.

The class members have participated actively in sports and other school activities. We are looking forward to three more enjoyable years at H. A.

Members who were elected previously and who are still in school are Robert Getchell, Douglas Emery, Rose Brooker, and Virginia Nichols.

The first person to misspell a word was seated and given the number twenty-four; the second was given twenty-three, and so on, until all had been spelled down. The school receiving the smallest number of points was the winner.

Ora Carmichael was the last to stand, and she accepted the trophy for Hartland Academy. We are all very proud of the wonderful job she did.

All of the Junior and Senior F. F. A. boys attended the Farm and Home Week for one day. While there, we attended two meetings; one was a movie entitled "The Ruman Story," and the other was a talk entitled "Pipe Line Bulk Milkers."

The Chapter has weekly meetings to discuss any problems that might arise.

The Fire and Safety Squad is a newly formed organization under the supervision of Mr. Trask. Six boys were selected to serve in this group.

We set up a procedure to be followed by the students in filing out of the building in case of fire. Certain rules were also planned for the safety of every student.

Our first fire drill was very successful, every student filing out of the building in less than a minute.

We hope this organization will improve each year, since it is really worthwhile.

We had four high scorers this year, all of whom were veterans. They were Bradford Buker, with 229 points; Phillip Seekins, with 195 points; Douglas Emery, with 177 points; and Earl Sherburne, with 145 points. Ronald Tasker and Ronald Lewis were also veterans from last year. We had an average score of 48.4 points per game.

The boys and the school all wish to thank Mr. Varney for the fine job he did in coaching, in spite of the fact that he had to drive up here every night, through all kinds of stormy weather.

Sandra Southard was elected captain, and Roxene Hughes served as manager, with the assistance of Ruth Seekins.

Under a new ruling, we played all of our league games in the afternoon. Although we did not win the championship, we had a good season.

The following number of points were scored by each forward: Sandra Southard, 252; Vondell Estes, 168; Nancy Estes, 139; Rebecca Nutter, 28; Patricia Humphrey, 18; Donna Goforth, 8; Mavis Hart, 6.

The 1954 Cross Country team, in spite of its poor record, did a very fine job.

We had two veterans from last year, Weston Elliot and Robert Kelso.

Captain Phillip Bowman received a medal for placing third in the League meet at Corinna.

We wish to thank Mr. Lenentine for his patience and time in coaching the team this year.

The softball season last year was not too successful. The rain kept us from playing our usual number of games. Scores of the two games played are as follows:

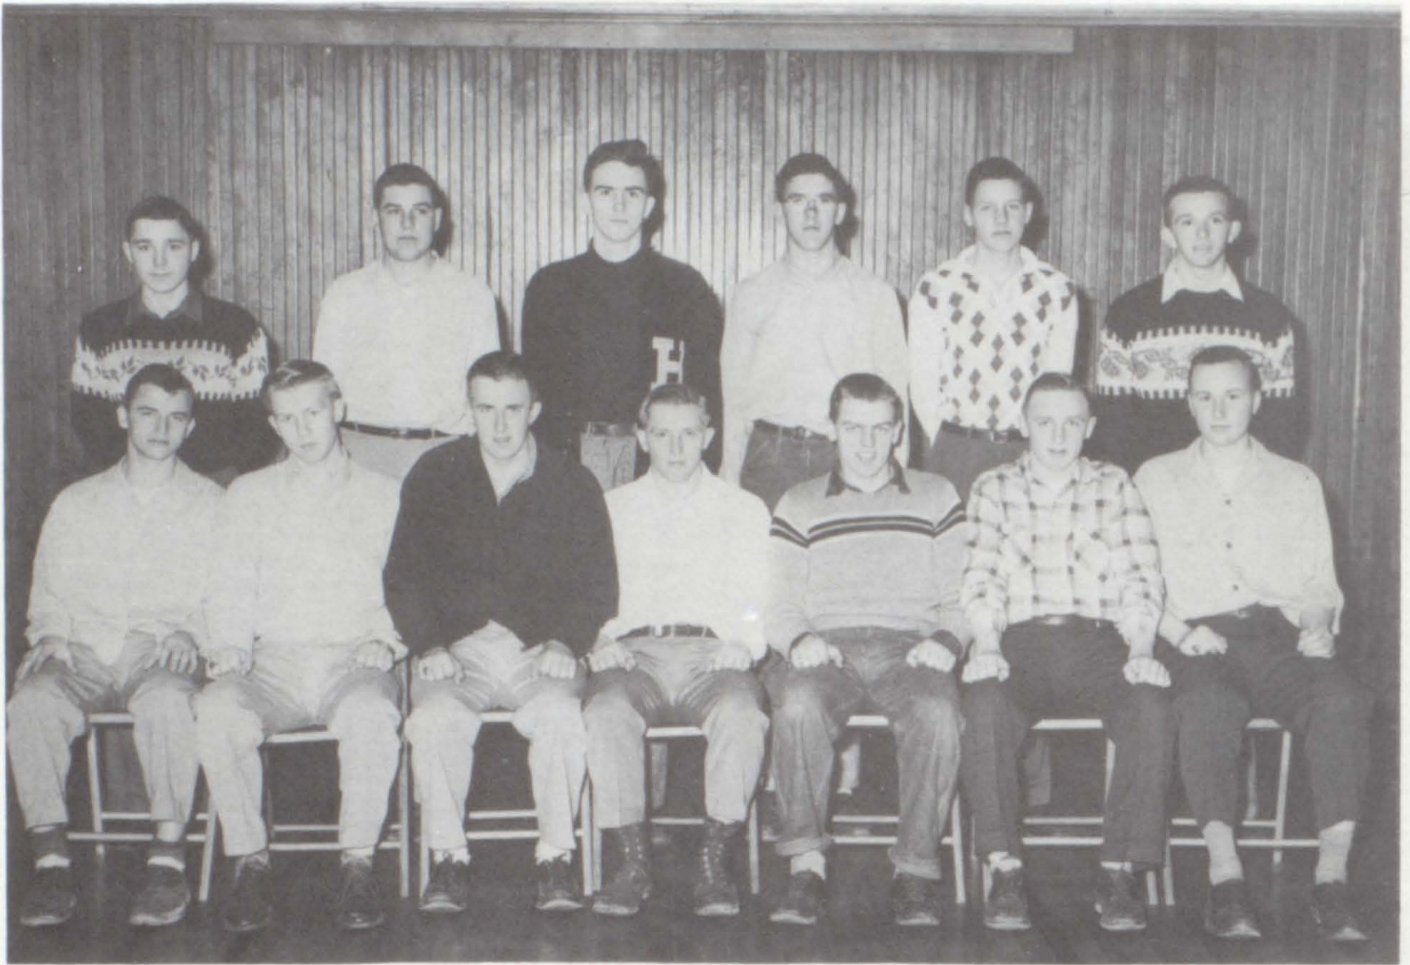

H. A.	40	East Corinth	17
H. A.	13	Corinna	23

The last game was played in the pouring rain, as all of the girls remember.

Miss McKiel did an excellent job coaching us, and we enjoyed the season very much. Roxene Hughes served as our manager.

Under the able coaching of Mr. Poliquin, the baseball team of '54 enjoyed a very successful season, with a record of nine wins and two losses in league play. In the State Baseball Tournament, Hartland lost to Orono by a score of 4-3.

On the opening day, Elmer Ballard, Hartland's crafty right-hander, chalked up the first no-hitter of his high school career against East Corinth. He pitched several other good games.

The girls were very co-operative, and we all had a delightful season.

Gregory Ratoff spotted this sign in an army barracks in Israel:
"Privates will kindly refrain from giving advice to officers."

When a young man was asked in court why he didn't give the lady room to pass on the highway, he replied, "I was going to as soon as I found out which side she wanted."

There's the poor guy who swallowed the nickel and the doctor made him cough up five dollars.

Your husband does seem overjoyed to see you, however it will be some time before the anesthetic wears off.

Then there was the guy who was so active that five years after he died his self-winding watch was still running.
