LITERATURE

"OUR FATHER"

When the adults of our society prohibited the repeating of the "Lord's Prayer" at our high school, they took away the one opportunity we all shared to think about God. The majority of students knew and said the "Lord's Prayer" when we had our daily opening exercises. Maybe they didn't all have the same conception of each word, or perhaps they didn't even have any thoughts of the Divine, but at least they all had a chance to have some religious contact.

One is always hearing someone griping about one of the various subjects they are taking, but no one has ever heard a disrespectful or grudging remark made about saying the daily "Prayer".

Someone is always saying that we live in a democracy, where one decides for himself. Where was democracy when our government passed a law to stop the repeating of the "Lord's Prayer"? How does the government know whether we, the students, want to say the "Prayer" or not; we were never asked.

Although this is a personal opinion, I think that it is a pretty general feeling throughout our school: the "Lord's Prayer" should be allowed back in the schools to maintain at least one opportunity to reach God.

BUILDING AIR CASTLES

The art of building air castles has for a long time been a strictly "under the hat" type of business. Rather than risk the chance of its becoming extinct, I have decided to disclose a few well-guarded secrets.

First of all, there must be a reason for these air castles. Actually they are just wonderful ways to use up time, so it stands to reason that you wouldn't go about constructing one while trying to crack an algebra assignment. Instead, the ideal time would be in English or Science class when it has just been discovered that the next forty-eight minutes are to be filled with the one-sided discussion of a verbal or the principle behind the electro-magnet.

Now that the ideal place has been determined and the correct amount of time allotted, one must proceed with the general idea and design of the castle. Inspirations come from the smallest things. The new party dress to be bought next Friday or the unpredictable basketball game next weekend are excellent foundations on which to build. As for the design, building an air castle without a plan in mind is the same thing as building a house without a blueprint. Without such a design the result is apt to have doors where there should have been windows. Perhaps the best way is to begin with a definite conclusion in mind, such as the final purchase of the dress or the definite victory in the game, and then build toward it adding whatever frills are necessary, for instance, shoes to match or a ten point lead.

One small hint, keep watch of the time. It is very distracting to be almost at the completion of a beautiful castle only to be interrupted by the bell with the final touches still to be added.

With all these pointers in mind one should still proceed with caution, for even more disturbing than being aroused by the bell is being discovered by the teacher. And I might add, air castles built in detention halls are considerably harder than those constructed amidst the peace and quiet of a grammar lecture.

Therefore it is possible to accomplish a satisfactory, if not totally pleasing result if aimed with a definite plan of action and a few necessary safeguards, and besides, the builder will be rewarded with the pleasure of forty-eight minutes well spent.

DIXIE MOORE '67

"LIFE"

Life is but one wave
 In a sea, which I cannot save.
At birth, I'm much like the sand,
 Clinging to the sea as it carries me from land.
I have no choice of where I go,
 I only follow the current, that is so,
As older and more adventurous I have grown,
 Like the mist from the sea I have flown.
Away from my support I find,
 That I have left every worry behind.
I find all my hopes will soon be fulfilled,
 But suddenly, all my dreams are killed.
For, with the rain I come down,
 Yes, right back to the ground.
Then—Splash—comes the wave over me.

MARIE MATIJCZYK '66

EDUCATION AND THE FUTURE

One of the most crucial problems that exists today is that of education. The demands for education is at its peak. Yet statistical studies show that the high school dropout rate is at an all time high. Why is this so when a high school education can be obtained by any teenager, at the public's expense? What stands behind their reasoning for taking these vital steps away from education? Is it the work that goes with earning a passing mark, the over-all authority from parents and teachers—is it the urge to get out and meet the world and see what it holds for them, or is it the fact that they are blind? Perhaps they are blind to reality, too busy living for today, for the present, to think about all the tomorrows and what they'll do and be then.

The adults say it's a cruel world out there, and the more educated and the more emotionally, mentally and socially mature we are when we face it the easier it will be. With a lifetime ahead of us, why not take a little time to prepare ourselves for the future—the future in which we'll be the adults criticizing the teenagers—the future in which we'll be expected to set the examples and keep our country educated?

MARTHA JOHNSON '67

SEA

The sea is an enchantress, a sorcerer. She coaxes, tempts, and weedles, and then she grasps. Her charm is overshadowed by her wickedness. Into her den she lures ships, then clasps them to her bosom to be seen no more. The Thresher and the Titanic, once her friends, are now her captives.

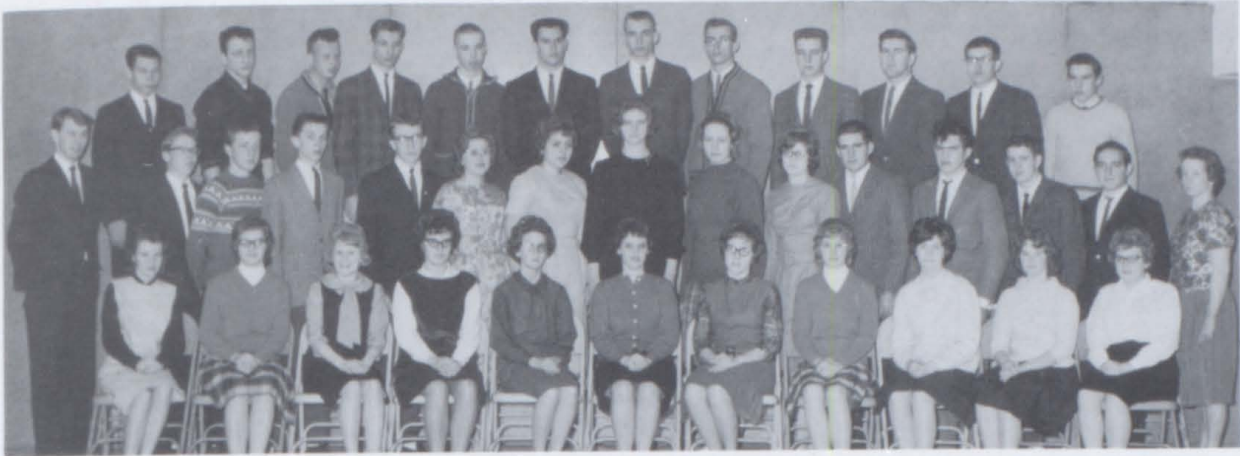

But who can resist her in her better moods? Within her depths she hides a fantasy world beheld only in fairy tales. The inhabitants of her world are a mystery and a source of wonder.

Playful, frolicing, and devilish, she laps against the beach, around the ankles of children, or hits the shore roaring with a surfer on her back.

She is wicked and playful by turns, but life without her would be impossible.

Although we are losing two girls through graduation, the rest of the team looks forward to next season with much enthusiasm.

THE OFFICIAL STATE OF MAINE BAND

The Hartland Academy Band was selected as the Official State of Maine Band to attend the National Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D. C. for the year 1964. After being chosen, the band and the senior class joined and made the trip a week-long time of fun, learning, and most of all honor to our school. We visited both New York and Washington on this trip.

The members of the band marched on April 11, 1964 in the Parade of Princesses. We were all very thrilled and rewarded as we marched down Constitution Avenue. We wish to thank all of the people who helped to make this trip possible.

We also participated in the Kennebec Valley Band. We had ten representatives in this band. They were: Sharon Sprague, Sherilyn Buck, Elmer Littlefield, Linwood Humphrey, Forrest Stedman, Rodney Gervais, Pamela Allen, Nelson Laughton, Karole Wade, and Pat Bishop.

On May 9, 1964 the band represented our school well at the Music Festival which was held in Belfast.
