TO THE STUDENTS

Graduates:

For the past few years now, we have been working together in anticipation of the day when you will be leaving Hartland Academy to take your places in the world of adulthood. Though these days have been seemingly long and arduous for the most part, they will seem but fleeting moments in the days to come, and you will look back upon them, hopefully, as some of the best days of your life.

It is my hope that we have prepared you for what lies ahead, not necessarily for a vocation, but for those human relationships which are the real challenges in your future. One of the difficulties in evaluating education is that its true worth can only be measured years later when it is no longer possible to correct any mistakes that might have been made. Therefore, we hope that you are able to incorporate the useful knowledge, overcome the deficiencies of our program, and, with mature judgment, proceed to make a fruitful life for yourself and any others for whom you become responsible.

In closing, I wish to extend to you a challenge, I DARE YOU to live a good clean life. This is not the easy way, and it will demand of you sacrifices not easily made. However, when all is said and done, your life will be only as meaningful as you are willing to make it.

Vaughn A. Stedman, Principal

Students:

I have been requested by the Hartland Academy Ripple Staff to write a few words relative to Hartland Academy.

We have entered a new era in education, the area school. The fundamental function of any high school is to give the young people in the community the best education possible. Taking all the circumstances and acts into consideration, the Hartland Academy Board of Trustees have deemed it advisable to turn Hartland Academy over to the new area school, firmly believing that the best interest of this community will be served.

We are making no apology for Hartland Academy. It has served the interests of this community for many years. It has been a good school and, generally speaking, has received the peoples' support.

While we hate to see it close, we feel that the step we are taking is simply the course of progress and the new trend in education.

So good bye to Hartland Academy and may your new area school have as much success in educating the youth in this community as has good old H. A.

Verne A. Merrill, President of former Board of Trustees

LITERATURE

HAPPINESS IS

Happiness is having fun
In everything you do.
Happiness is being safe
If danger threatens you.
Happiness is having friends
To share the good and bad.
Happiness is being wanted
When you're all alone and sad.

Happiness is having parties
Out in your own back yard.
Happiness is watching parades
With bands and color guards.
Happiness is watching movies
With your best beau at your side.
Happiness is having sisters
To laugh with and to guide.

Happiness is anything.
It's all up to you.
Depends on your attitude
And the things you do.
Happiness is everywhere
The world is full of song.
You can gain that happiness,
Just smile as you go along.

LOSING AND WINNING

Losing makes us try harder shows us our mistakes gives us something to fight for.

Winning makes us feel good,
until we lose again.

Birney Moore '66

WHAT IS IMPORTANT

There lived a man.
He had fine friends.
He had a family.
He did have wants—
And, too, great happiness.

There lived a man.
He had money.

OUR FLAG, OLD GLORY

The American flag is more than a "pledge allegiance" symbol. The thirteen red and white stripes, which give our flag its distinction, aren't just ornamental colors. The seven red stripes stand for the loyal American blood, shed during the seven vicious wars we have encountered from the Revolutionary War to World War II. The six white stripes stand for the pureness of freedom and the clearness of love among the states and their people. The fifty white stars, standing on the blue background, represent the fifty individual yet undivided states who share the hardships and rewards of our democracy. Each point on a star holds a significant meaning. The five points reflect integrity, equality, fraternity, liberty, and love. The deep blue background, which seems to bind the stars into a union, represents God, the almighty power. Until we American people truly realize the meaning and importance of our flag, Old Glory will merely be an old symbol.

THE PURSUIT

The young man staggered and then fell as he entered the rickety door of the little shack. With all his remaining strength he pulled himself to his feet, only to fall down again. As he lay on the floor, a small, vivid red puddle began to form under his head. The body was motionless, cold, and very, very dead. On his head were several gashes and bruises, obviously received from several repeated blows. On one side of his head was an ugly purple scar.

Outside the shack, a noisy crowd was gaining in strength. Finally, the door of the little shack collapsed under the weight of the pursuing crowd; and rough and angry people stormed in, only to find the pursued lying dead on the floor. Over the body was the sobbing and weeping wife of this unfortunate man and at her sides were the panic stricken faces of two little children, the offsprings of this once happy couple.

This family was Negro, and they were not wanted.

Let's put ourselves in the place of this family or in the place of many other Negro families. Just suppose that the Negro was the pursuer and that we were the prey. Just imagine that the Negro had the most strength, the largest percentage of the population, and the best ideas and policies. Just suppose that the Negro could vote freely and could make all the laws he wanted and needed. Suppose he was trying to get full segregation, to separate the White from the superior Negro. How would we feel, what would we want done to change this injustice, because surely this is what we would think of it? Wouldn't we want a voice in what was going to happen to our lives? The answer, of course, is yes! We all care what happens, especially if it concerns our welfare.

I know that someday everyone will have truly equal rights. It's inevitable! But how about making that day come a little sooner? Why not try to get more unity and peace in this country before involving ourselves with the welfare of other countries? Remember, both sides cannot be all right or all wrong! Peace depends on us, the future voters of tomorrow.

A HERO COMES HOME

Sergeant James Brown was coming home after spending six months in Viet Nam. He was what some people would call a hero; he didn't. To him it had only been a job and a dirty one at that. Alone he had knocked out a Viet Cong machine gun nest and killed six of the enemy. For that he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart.

He had escaped a terrorist bomb that went off in his barracks, as he had been out on a mission that night. A week before, his squad had been pinned down by heavy fire from the jungle. Practically alone, he had carried his wounded men back out of the line of fire, even though he had been hit three times himself.

Now it was all over, and he was riding the train home. The weather was hot; but he didn't mind. Stretched out in the plain coffin, a hero was coming home.

The student council's chief purpose is to serve as a link between the student body and the faculty to accomplish something beneficial to both.

This year the council worked with the Boosters' Club to co-sponsor the Winter Carnival Ball. The council has looked into the possibility of organizing a rifle club and it is hoped that this can be accomplished in the near future. The five senior members represented us at the State S. C. Convention in Yarmouth. There was also a delegation to the Central Maine Region Convention in Monmouth where Dixie Moore was elected vice-president of the Central Maine Region.

The Boosters' Club main project for the year was the annual Hartland Academy Invitational Tournament for grammar school teams. There were eight teams in the contest and the final game put Carmel on top of St. Albans. The club co-sponsored the Winter Carnival Ball with the Student Council and made plans for a winter Carnival which was not held due to weather conditions. The Boosters' Club held many "study hall dances" after our home basketball games. The club attributes its wealth to the proceeds from their newly purchased popcorn machine which saw a great deal of action this year.
