WINTER

Winter is here again; the signs are unmistakable. The howling wind from the north brings a vision that forecasts things to come. With flurries of snow slowly floating down and dying on the ground, I sat by my fire and reflected on last year's wintry quarter. I remember the shivering cold and the frosty morning with the ice in the puddles thickened under the onslaught of winter's icy hand. I remember the ground covered with snow and houses and trees covered with a white mantle. After the first storm there was an unorganized and complete exodus to the local hardware store where the stock of shovels, plows, and scoops was completely exhausted. Who of us can ever forget the intricate designs of frost left on the window by that ageless herald of winter's coming, Jack Frost. Although an icy wind may blow, people turn up their furnaces and look with scorn at the proverbial blizzard without. Winter finally has arrived; its signs are unmistakable.

MARY

For Mary, the last class of the day had just ended. When the bell rang, she gathered up her books and hurried back to her home room to be dismissed. On the way, someone hit her arm, causing her books to fall. The offender never stopped to help her in her plight. Even though Mary was accustomed to this, it still hurt her deeply to know that no one accepted her. After the dismissal of the huge class, Mary decided to walk down to the drugstore where everyone went after school—everybody, that is, except Mary. Today, however, Mary was making an exception. She hoped that just for once somebody would look at her and say, "Hello, Mary", or maybe that somebody would ask her if he could walk to the drugstore with her. Mary didn't care who said "Hello" to her, just as long as someone did. She would then feel accepted by at least one person in the world. As she neared the drugstore though, neither of her wishes had come true, and she debated at the door whether to go in or to go home. Mary finally decided to go in and to sit at the only available place for her a chair in one of the corners, a place where she would be all alone. She ordered a coke, drank it, and left. No one said, "Good-bye, Mary. See you tomorrow." In fact, no one said anything. No one even waved good-bye. You see, Mary's all alone in the world. Mary's a Negro.

FEAR

The soldier tried to drive his face and body deeper into the dirt of his shallow, too shallow, foxhole. He shuddered at the thought of one of the many bullets whizzing overhead or hitting the ground around him tearing into his body. Then he realized that the guns had ceased chattering, the bullets had ceased flying. But why? Were the enemy retreating at last, or were they preparing to charge and wipe out the puny resistance in one blow? That was it! But first they'd creep up close, real close, and he was out in front. The enemy would reach him first! Was that a noise? It sounded like someone walking his way. Dig deeper, that was it. Maybe they'd pass right by and not see him or maybe they'd think he was dead. Where was that noise coming from? Or was he just imagining it? He had to see. He slowly lifted his head, and as he did so a retreating enemy fired a random shot at the lines. That bullet had his name on it.

BILLY

Billy lived in the poor section of town. His father was an alcoholic and his mother worked in a local hotel to support the family of seven children.

Because the Christmas season was rapidly approaching, Billy began to save every penny he could. He wanted so much to buy his cherished mother a new dress as she hadn't had one in three years. Billy had managed to save $6.20.

Three days before Christmas he went downtown to the department store. As he went into the entrance he couldn't believe what his eyes saw. Some careless shopper had dropped a $10 bill! Billy was overjoyed—now he could buy his mother an expensive dress!

He then went to the women's clothing department. He overheard another shopper say, "I would love to buy Ann this $20 dress, but I know she will be pleased with a less expensive one. It is really the thought not the cost of a gift that matters."

Billy purchased his mother a $5.95 dress and walked to the Lost and Found Department.

SCHOOL DAYS — SCHOOL CRAZE

September classes had started again
When bubble gum chewing was halted.
The old expressions like "ain't" and "gut"
By teachers were being assaulted.
The end of the first week, all was fine.
The end of the second, the same.
But the end of the third week, something went wrong;
The teachers had gone insane.
The hours of work had reached a sum
Of millions and billions, it seemed.
The nerves of the teachers were badly frayed
For Christmas vacation they dreamed.
But for all the trouble and nonsense
And for all the pink slips they write
We know they must really like it
Cause everything comes out all right.

CAROLE BUKER, '65

BIOGRAPHY OF A TRAGEDY

It started innocently enough. Jack, husband and father of four, was easily urged into having "one for the road" by his cronies at the office party. Feeling very happy and contented, Jack started for home. It was stormy, but Jack had no qualms about the ten-mile journey home.

In another part of town a teen-age boy was saying goodnight to his girl. As Ken drove out of the driveway, his thoughts were far away from the slippery road on which he was driving.

Startled into alertness by the feeling of sliding wheels, Ken twisted the steering wheel. Suddenly the lights of an approaching car loomed up on him. In the other car, Jack was belatedly awakening to the fact that some car was in trouble.

There was a screech of tires, and then the sickening crash of metal as car hit car. Two people are dead and two families needlessly grief-stricken.

This happens every day, all over the United States. Perhaps even now the crash of metal against metal is tearing some one away from you.

PREJUDICE

Mary Jane felt distinctly out of place. She had never been around these people before and she felt very uncomfortable. If it had not been for Bill, she would not have come to the country club dance at all. Even her new $20.00 dress could not raise her low spirits. It was the most expensive dress she had ever had but it could not compare with the shimmering, low-cut evening gowns worn by the ladies of the regular country club set. Mary Jane had done her own hair and it looked very good but it, too, could not compare with the beautiful, bouffant hairdos of the women around her.

Mary Jane could have overcome these obstacles and had a wonderful time had it not been for the scene overheard in the powder room.

"Did you see that disgraceful girl with Bill Andrews?"

"I most certainly did. What is he trying to do. A girl like that doesn't belong here."

"Doesn't she know everyone is laughing at her."

The rest of the conversation fell on deaf ears as Mary Jane flew from the powder room, the country club dance, and out of Bill Andrews life, back across the tracks, to her home and her kind of people.

A LITTLE FRENCH GIRL

The French girl calls her coat "manteau",
She says she has a new "chapeau",
Her brother has a new "veston",
He also has "un pantalon".

She calls her shoes "les sauliers",
When cooking wears "un tablier",
Her brother has a read "casquette",
To wear "quand il port sa jaquette"

She calls her lovely hair "les cheveux",
And shiny, large, dark eyes, "les yeux",
Her knee is called "le genou",
And such a word for neck, "le cou"!

THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Seated, left to right: C. Boyd, D. Ballard, C. Buck, D. Pelkie, Standing: M. Buker, C. Webber, N. Laughton, K. Wade.

To be a member of the National Honor Society is the highest honor one can achieve. One must show scholastic ability as well as qualities of leadership, character, and service.

The annual Central Maine initiation was held May 2, 1963, with Margo Buker serving as Chairman of the initiation program. New members from Hartland Academy were:

Seniors — Charlene Boyd, Donna Pelkie

Juniors—Karole Wade

Sophomores — Coleen Webber.

To help worthy students continue their education, the N.H.S. holds an annual scholarship drive. The students are chosen from a number of applicants from the senior class who have been accepted at a college. To raise money, the N.H.S. holds a tag day and solicits money from individuals and organizations in the surrounding neighborhoods. This year the profits from the Alumni Game, and the Faculty Game were donated to our scholarship fund.

At the end of the first ranking period, the N.H.S. held a party for the honor roll students. Mr. Floyd Burrill showed his slides of Viet Nam and also gave a talk. Refreshments were served later in the evening.

We would like to thank our advisor, Mr. Stedman, for his help throughout the year.

JOKES

One speaker on the program, heckling the other before his speech:
 "Tell them all you know. It won't take longer than 10 minutes."
 The speaker came back with, "I'll tell them all we both know;
 that won't take more than 15 minutes."

My speech will be like the latest Paris fashion: Long enough to cover the subject and short enough to be interesting.

Mr. Osgood who drove his long, high-powered car into a filling station told the attendant "Fill 'er up." After a while the attendant suggested, "Better shut off your engine, you're gaining on me."

TAKE YOUR TIME. I DON'T EXPLAIN 'EM—I JUST TELL 'EM!

Center: Mr. Stedman, Coach.

The past basketball season with a few breaks could have been a winning season. For example we lost to Higgins 76-72 in a triple overtime. Another example was the last game of the season against Brownville Junction. We lost by 7 points, after leading about the whole game. These games and a couple of other games that we should have won might have enabled us to go to the tournament this year, but as things turned out, we ended up with a 6-8 record, an improvement over last year.

The team's highest scorer, Chet Hubbard, a sophomore, had 331 points to his credit. The second and third highest scorers were Nelson Laughton, and Dane Allen respectively.

Next year, with four of the starting five back, we hope to have a real successful year, and maybe we can reach the tournament.

The games and their scores:

At this time the boys' team would like to thank Mr. Stedman for his outstanding coaching job that he did this past season. We are hoping that next year will be his and our year of success.

The 1962-63 basketball campaign didn't prove to be too successful for the jayvee team. They finished the season with a won-lost record of 1-10. However, they showed a lot of improvement during the season and they should have a successful season next year.

The team had a couple of close games which could have been victories. The team lost a game with Erskine by a single point in the final minutes after leading throughout the game.

The four highest scorers were: David Sinclair with 121 points, Dwight Hewins with 52, Ronnie Rice with 51, and Albin Matijczyk with 46.

The jayvee team wishes to thank Mr. Libby for working with us this year.

Although we are losing a terrific guard, Dianne Curtis, the prospects look good for next year.

Although we didn't have a winning season, we feel that with the experience we gained and everyone coming back, we will do much better next year.

The season's record was as follows:

JOKES

Teacher: "What is your name, son?"

Small boy: "Jule, sir."

Teacher: "You shouldn't use a nick-name. Your name must be Julius. Next, what is your name?"

Second small boy: "Billious, sir."

Novel soap advertisement: "Use Lumpo soap. It doesn't cleanse, it doesn't bubble, it hardly lathers, but it is good company in the tub."

Teacher: "Bayne, what is a flood?"

Bayne: "It is a river too big for its bridges."

Adolescence is when a boy goes from a Mickey Mouse watch to a Jayne Mansfield calendar.

YOU MIGHT AS WELL LAUGH—THEY WON'T GET ANY BETTER!

OFFICE STAFF

We, the office staff, put our previous training to good use by typing papers for the teachers, running office machines, answering the telephone, greeting callers, and answering the students' requests. We are all grateful for the chance to gain this experience.

We would like to express our thanks to Mr. Hamlin, our principal, for presenting this opportunity to us.
