They were living in Drew in C/1920 where he was Post Master in 1918. They moved to Hartland in 1921 where he purchased the former A. H. Buck Stove Shop on Commercial Street and opened "C. I. Currie General Store" which he operated until his retirement in 1957.

They sold the store in January of 1959 to Claude & Elizabeth (Hart) Fisher. They had moved to Pittsfield living with their youngest daughter Charlotte and her family when Maude passed away later that year at Scott-Webb Hospital following a long illness. Clair remained in Pittsfield with Charlotte until his death at Scott-Webb Hospital.

Drew was organized in 1856 as Drew Plantation; organization legalized in 1868. Land was set off to Prentiss Township (then the town of Prentiss) in 1869. More land was set off to Reed (now Reed Plantation) in 1889, and part of that plantation was annexed in 1903. It incorporated in 1921 as the Town of Drew; organization surrendered in 1934 and it reorganized that same year as Drew Plantation.
